Millennia2025 Solidarity-Women: Solidarity with women in precarious situations

- √ through the involvement of suppliers of goods or services
- √ through the mobilization of citizens, donors and financial partners

Reminder of the process of Millennium2015

The foresight research process called Millennium2015 Women actors of development for the global challenges, created in 2007, led to the Action Plan for Women's Empowerment sketched with the patronage of UNESCO at the International Conference, 3-4 in December 2012 in Paris, and constantly strengthened by field partners.

Six strategic axes, designed to meet the macro-issues and to reach the vision of Millennium2015 formulated by the Millennium2015 Voluntary Researchers' Network by 2025, are implemented through the concrete actions proposed by the network.

The objective of the Millennium2025 Women and Innovation Foundation is to achieve these concrete actions and action plans in favor of women and girls in the concerned countries, for their empowerment and for gender equality.

Motivation of Millennium2025 Solidarity-Women

Many women face daily precarious situations, earning less than one thousand euros per month in the heart of Europe: women head of single-parent families, mothers working at home, working women with children, part-time employees or working in the informal sector, women suffering from long-term unemployment, disabled women or women with handicaps, elderly women in difficulty of health or destitute.

The invoices of the resources suppliers (electricity, water, heating, health, transport, mutual insurances, healthcare, catering, administration, housing, ...) are a real burden and children also suffer from this vulnerability.

Partnership with generic suppliers will reduce bills for these courageous women, in order to generate citizen solidarity funds and create an educational emulation to better use the family resources.

Gender equality benefits everyone, not just women. It is an accelerator of political, economic and social transformations, which boosts the strength.
