

Women actors of development for the global challenges

Celebrating a century of action and heading towards 2015

How to celebrate a century of action for the assertion of women? Which are the main challenges facing women at 2015? How to strengthen political participation, the implementation of human rights, and the respect of ethics for all women? How to guarantee the access to information and knowledge for all? How to recognize and enhance women's competences? How to advance creativity, education, training, and e-Learning for all? How to address the role of women in the new cyber-world? How to take into account cultural and linguistic diversities in the global knowledge economy? How to manage health and «add life to the years», as suggested by Joel de Rosnay? Millennia 2015 will lead these thoughts from local to global, by engaging the regional and interregional systems, as well as the international, European and world networks of Internet governance, of foresight, and women's rights activists.

Enhance the driving force of the women for the benefit of humanity as a whole

By addressing these questions, the main message of Millennia 2015 will be to enhance the driving force of women in the contemporary society, in order to increase their potential, to encourage their investment, and to wholly recognize their responsibility in the technological development for the benefit of humanity as a whole. Millennia 2015 will explore the means leading towards increased equality and solidarity, in a context of respect for cultural and linguistic diversity as well as sustainable development. The involvement of women is crucial in order to bridge the social gaps by benefiting from the opportunities created by the information society. The grounds for action addressed by the speakers of Millennia 2015, in private as well as public sector, are in particular: education, employment and entrepreneurship, environment and health, information and communication, rights and citizenship, culture and innovation.

Foresight as method and information society as context

Millennia 2015 will use foresight in the context of the information society to develop a positive vision of the future envisioned by women for the entire world. The Millennia 2015 process will be developed through three international conferences. The first phase, organized in 2008 in Liège, is focused on Information Transfers: exchange, collection, and analysis of data in order to assess the current situation and to propose a synopsis of the challenges. The second session (work on the Knowledge Processes) is planned to be held in 2011 in Paris (at UNESCO), and the third (construction of Intelligence Platforms) in 2015 in New York (at the United Nations).

Networking interaction and memorandum to decision makers

Celebrating a century of action and firmly focused towards the future, the international conference 2008 will be organized in plenary sessions and workshops. The speakers will present the subjects by considering the possible and desirable futures for 2015, in order to produce a memorandum which will be forwarded to decision makers at all levels. During the conference, an interactive exhibit and several informative sessions will be organized at the Liège Convention Centre, allowing the participants to present their achievements and develop networks. Simultaneous English-French translation will be ensured during the entire conference, which will be recorded for the production of a DVD-book and podcasts to be published on the website <http://www.millennia2015.org>.
